Staff Sgt. Lanie McNeal

Monsoon season makes final approach, D-M ready

Arizona has more lightning strikes during the summer monsoon season, which normally starts in early July, than most states have all year. To help reduce the threat to the people and property at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base and in the Tucson community, three separate lightning notices are issued.

Members of the 355th Operations Support Squadron Weather Flight, working in conjunction with the 25th Operational Weather Squadron, issue these notices, which are tailored to alert the base populace whenever thunderstorms and lightning threaten the base so that measures can be implemented to protect our resources.

Three separate lightning notices are the lightning watch, the observed weather advisory for thunderstorms and associated lightning, and the lightning warning. These three products each cover different criteria and serve to notify the base about the existing or anticipated conditions.

Knowing the difference between a lightning watch, an observed weather advisory for thunderstorms and a lightning warning is very important in determining what action to take and when. Although severe weather noti-

D-M hosts award of Vietnam-era lost Air Force Cross

By Capt. Scott Cerone
357th Fighter Squadron

Retired Col. Jerry Hoblit was awarded an Air Force Cross June 20 at the Davis-Monthan Air Force Base Officers Club. The presentation of this award helped correct history and closes a chapter in Hoblit's life.

Hoblit's actions during the Vietnam Conflict warranted his receipt of the Air Force Cross, but it took the actions of his wingman, Wilson, to help set the record straight.

Then, Capt. Jerry Hoblit and Tom Wilson, after a long year and 100 missions over North Vietnam, climbed down the ladders of their Thud, F-105F, and embraced under a shower of champagne and cheers. They had survived.

As pilot and electronic weapons officer, "Hognose" and "Bear" were two of the first Wild Weasels in the Waiting too long

Comment: Recently we checked in at the 3555th Mission Support Group to get my wife an ID card to replace her expired card.

After 20 to 25 minutes of waiting, nobody's name had been called. I asked the NCO at the desk what the average wait time was for an ID card and she said 45 minutes to an hour.

There were four people behind the desk and nobody appeared to be working. There were a lot of people sitting around in the waiting room, no names had been called. I think 45 minutes to an hour waiting for an ID card is totally unacceptable when the sign says this is the best group in the system. Thank you.

Response: We're sorry that you experienced such a long delay in service when you and your wife came to the Military Personnel Flight for a new ID card. You're right, 45 minutes does seem excessive.

Military personnel are now being issued a new ID card — the Common Access Card. Unfortunately, the issue/wait time has increased from an average of 3 to 4 minutes with the old card to approximately 15 minutes per customer for the CAC.

In addition, unforeseeable delays such as a disruption in service at the central Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System/

Rapids hub or the comm-line pipe being over saturated with users from across the continental United States can increase customer wait time to 45 minutes or more.

On the morning of your visit, the customer service section experienced those delays along with an unexpected rush of active duty Navy personnel who required new ID cards. Those factors, along with our need to train two new civilian members on one of our three ID card machines, led to the excess delays you experienced.

Although it may have appeared that "nobody was working" behind the counter, in reality our folks were working very hard to manually load/update required personnel information so that the system could properly format the CAC microchip - this also takes some time.

In the mean time, we will do a better job of keeping our patrons better informed. Specifically, we've instructed our customer service staff to make periodic announcements to the people in the lobby regarding reasons for the long delays and expected wait times.

In addition, we will formally post the expected customer service wait time on the counter so that patrons will know on arrival what to expect.

Again, we apologize for the inconvenience and are doing our best to improve service in the future.

Supporting each other and working together to provide the best programs and services is a goal for all D-M people. Suggestions, concerns and kudos are important to make improvements. The best way to pass along a comment or to get an answer to a concern is to contact the agency chief or functional managers listed here. Still no solution? The Commander's Corner phone line is 228-4747. An email can be sent to: 355thWing.CommandersCorner@dm.af.mil. Callers must leave their name, phone number and a message. They will receive a prompt reply in writing or by telephone. We will honor caller confidentiality, but sometimes need to contact callers to gather additional information. Concerns of general interest to the base populace may be published. However, anonymous calls may not be published.

Team D-M Mission Spotlight

The 355th Security Forces Squadron protects more aircraft than any other DoD agency providing physical security and law enforcement to the 355th Wing, 12th Air Force headquarters, Aerospace Maintenance and Regeneration Center's 5,200 aircraft, more than 11,000 base residents and 1,379 facilities spread over 12,000 acres valued at more than $8.8 billion. Additionally, they provide combat arms training for 6,100 military personnel. D-M's five-cell, maximum security confinement facility processes and houses an average of 21 felons per year.

The squadron's six explosive-detector dogs and two narcotics-detector dogs are in high demand at D-M, the U.S. southern border and numerous deployed locations in the continental United States and abroad.

The personnel security section processes and monitors an average of 750 background and clearance checks for D-M's 39 units and 12th Air Force headquarters.

history of the United States Air Force.

The Wild Weasel mission was to protect strike packages from enemy surface-to-air missile sites by actively searching them out and engaging them. The cold reality of this mission was it was one of the most dangerous in the Air Force. It was almost as if these pilots and EWOs were asked to walk into a lion's den holding two giant rib eye steaks in their hands and hoping to only lose their fingers.

With their tour complete, Hoblit and Wilson left the 357th Tactical Fighter Squadron and bid Takhli, Royal Thai Air Base goodbye. They both retired from the Air Force after several other assignments, but always looked back on their time in the 357th TFS as, "a time of fond memories."

Hoblit and his backseater, Wilson, live close together, just north of Houston, Texas, and often get together to talk and reminisce about old times. Some conversations are about the Astros relief pitchers blowing another game, a humorous story about a 5/8ths crescent wrench flying across the garage after it slipped while working on the car, or about dodging SA-2 missiles while flying three times the speed of a Formula 1 race car at tree-top level.

"Back when (about 2002), the History Channel was interviewing us for their special program, 'Suicide Missions – Wild Weasels' I realized that Jerry Hoblit had one fewer Silver Stars than I. I researched my records and discovered that Jerry was on each set of orders for all of the decorations I received except for one and that one was a particularly intense mission," Wilson wrote.

"I contacted our old squadron commander, Ben Murph, and asked him if Jerry had been submitted for a medal for that mission. Ben checked in his personal journal for that date and confirmed that Jerry Hoblit had been submitted for an Air Force Cross for that mission, and reminded me that we had been shot up pretty good by anti-aircraft fire and landed at Udorn. I gathered up all of the paperwork and resubmitted it through our local Congressman. That was one year ago."

The medal was approved May 23 and twelve Wild Weasels from the 357th Tactical Fighter Squadron began their journey to see one of their old friends receive the second highest decoration for valor and heroism in combat.

The Weasels arrived at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base, the current home of the 357th Tactical Fighter Squadron, now known as the 357th Fighter Squadron, June 20.

The day began with a surprise reunion of Hoblit with his three daughters and two grandsons. Hoblit's daughter, Holly, and her sons, Erik and Ethan, came all the way from Germany for the ceremony.

The Davis-Monthan Air Force Base Officers Club was standing room only for the medal ceremony which opened with a slideshow of the 357th Fighter Squadron's history in combat, dating back to World War II and culminating with a single image of the Air Force Cross. Hoblit's flight commander from the 357th at Takhli, Medal of Honor recipient Retired Col. Leo Thorsness, presented Hoblit with an Air Force Cross. The ceremony was followed with an emotional and thunderous standing ovation from the audience. Hoblit had finally been recognized.

In an emotional commentary Hoblit had his backseater, Tom "Bear" Wilson join him in front of the crowd and spoke of a bond that could only have been forged in combat. Once again the two heroes embraced and the crowd broke into another ovation.

After the ceremony Hoblit's wife, Rosalie, was overwhelmed by the day's events. "I am so happy. All those Silver Stars he received were just handed to him in an office, still in the box. There were no ceremonies. Today was just beautiful."

Regarding the day Hoblit could only say one thing, "I am just overwhelmed." After thirty-six years he has finally received the recognition he deserved.

News Notes

Claims for estate

Any person or persons having claims for or against the estate of Airman 1st Class Melesio Merino, deceased, assigned to the 612th Air Communications Squadron, should contact Maj. Patrick Murphy, 612th ACOMS summary court officer, at 228-6813 or via e-mail at patrick.murphy@dm.af.mil.

Traffic pattern change

Road construction at the intersection of Sunset Road and Saratoga Avenue is scheduled to last through June 30. For the duration of construction, traffic in this area will be restricted to a single lane in all directions.

Legal office hours

Davis-Monthan Air Force Base legal services are available for all active-duty military members, retirees and family members of both. No appointments are available for legal questions and same day wills, but walk-in hours are Mondays and Wednesdays from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and Fridays from 8 to 10 a.m. Notary services, powers of attorney and in lieu of tax forms are available Mondays through Fridays from 8 to 10 a.m. Evening legal assistance, which offers all services, is available the second Wednesday of every month from 5 to 6:30 p.m. For more information regarding legal services, or to inquire about legal services available for guard and reserve members, call 228-5242.

July 4 Volunteers for Vets

Davis-Monthan Air Force Base is hosting a barbecue for veterans at the Tucson Veterans Administration Medical Center July 4 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. The VA hospital is located at 3601 South 6th Avenue. Volunteers will help prepare and serve food and spend time with those who have given us so much. D-M volunteers will provide, cook and help serve food. For more information call Master Sgt. Craig Webster, 612th Air Intelligence Squadron, at 228-5391.

Promotion rates decline AF wide for tech and master

Air Force officials have selected 4,832 of 18,903 eligible technical sergeants for promotion to master sergeant, a 25.56 percent selection rate, and 7,116 of 32,501 eligible staff sergeants for promotion to technical sergeant, a 21.89 percent selection rate.

A higher retention rate — opening fewer vacancies for each rank — was one reason promotion rates are lower than last year, Air Force Personnel Center officials said. The final tally will increase as tests are received and scored for deployed airmen, said officials. They have 30 to 60 days after they return to test.

“People who have been deployed will be allowed to test when they return, and we’ll automatically consider them for promotion. We do this on a monthly basis until everyone is considered,” said Chief Master Sgt. Mark Billingsley, enlisted promotions branch chief at Randolph Air Force Base.

The master sergeant selection rate dropped 7.67 percent from last year, while this year’s technical sergeant rate fell 11.62 percent from last year.

“Overall, we are seeing tech and master sergeant promotion rates drop down to about where we suggested as we reach the goal of increasing the ‘top five’ enlisted grades from 48 to 56 percent (of the enlisted force),” said Billingsley.

The complete list of selectees will be posted to AFPC’s Web page. People who tested can expect their score notices in early July, allowing them to see just how their promotion fitness examination and specialty knowledge test scores rank against others within their Air Force specialty code. Gray on the move

Brig. Gen. Scott Gray, 12th Air Force vice commander, discusses leadership qualities at a mentoring luncheon with 41st Electronic Combat Squadron pilots Monday. The 41st ECS luncheon was Gray's last activity with the pilots he flew with during his assignment at 12th Air Force. He departs Davis-Monthan Air Force Base Tuesday for his next assignment as the wing commander, 89th Airlift Wing, Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

355th CS evacuates, saves equipment at Mount Lemmon

Members of the 355th Communications Squadron ground maintenance, the 'Dirt Rats,' removed radio equipment June 19 from a remote site at Mount Lemmon, which was being threatened by the ongoing Aspen Fire.

"Removal was based on input from the on-scene incident commander, Mr. Humphries and fire-fighting agencies, based on the direction of the fire's path," said Capt. John Gailliard, 355th CS Information Systems Flight commander. "The Radio Ridge Observatory Area (name used to refer to the equipment site) was determined to be in the imminent path of the fire, thus making this the second year in a row equipment had to be removed from this site."

This year's conditions required the training and expertise 355th CS members have honed through training and experience to rescue more than $400,000 in equipment.

"The team was initially cleared safe for the trip. While there, an abrupt change in wind strength and direction led to the fire jumping the firebreak," said Gailliard. "This in turn led to the team going from a 30-minute to leave message from fire fighters to a get-out-now situation."

"The expertise and can-do positive attitude of all involved led us to leaving with all the equipment we went there for."

"The removal of equipment from Radio Ridge in no way negatively impacts operations at D-M. There are built-in redundancies for loss of radio coverage. Day-day-to-day operations of D-M are unhindered."

"When cleared to return (to the site), a damage assessment team will determine facility safety and reusability. Any repairs will be made to ensure the facilities can properly house the equipment again." (Courtesy 355th Communications Squadron) fications apply to the entire base, forecasters focus on the actions of flightline workers.

When a lightning watch is issued, necessary actions should be taken to end outdoor operations and move indoors within 30 minutes.

Normally, the next notice issued is the observed advisory for thunderstorms and associated lightning. This advisory is issued when thunderstorms and lightning are observed within 10 miles of the airfield complex. When this observed weather advisory is issued, supervisors determine whether or not particular missions are critical, and whether non-essential Aerospace Ground Equipment should be removed from the flightline.

The notice with immediate impact on operations is the lightning warning.

The lightning warning is issued when lightning is occurring within five miles of the airfield complex. When it is issued, all outdoor activity ceases and personnel not directly involved with critical tasks need to leave the flightline and seek shelter.

Around the base, outdoor activities such as intramural sports, swimming or golf also should cease immediately, and everyone should stay under shelter until the threat is over.

Staff Sgt. Shanda De Anda

(Left to right) Staff Sgt. Paul Walker, 355th Operations Support Squadron, gives Navy Cmdr. Paul Camardella a pre-flight weather briefing. The 355th OSS Weather Flight helps keep the Davis-Monthan Air Force Base community forewarned of imminent weather, helping to protect people and property.

Our system of weather notifications is similar to airfield defense postures during exercises or contingencies. Lightning watches and observed advisories are similar to "alarm yellow." Personnel continue with operations, but with a firm plan to cease due to the danger associated with the incoming threat. When the lightning warning is issued, it's like being in alarm red.

Remember, the lightning warning is not issued until the first lightning strike occurs, so the actions you take when the lightning watch is issued are critical.

It is important for all D-M personnel to know and understand the system of weather notifications.

It is only then every member of team D-M can act and if necessary, accurately relay this crucial information.

If the message is unclear or arrives too late, the results could be deadly. (Courtesy 355th Operations Support Squadron Weather Flight)

Those who make it run often silent

By Col. Sarah Smith
355th Maintenance Group

At the end of the movie Gosford Park, Mrs. Wilson, the housekeeper, states that she is the perfect servant because she anticipates the needs of her employers. "I know what they want before they even know it themselves," she says, and has whatever they will want ready so that it can be given to them as soon as they request it. People such as Mrs. Wilson were so dedicated to their lives in service and the performance of their duties they were, to all intents and purposes, invisible to their employers.

Much of what happens in our daily lives is also ready before we know we want it. When was the last time you thought about your mail delivery, your lights and water heater, your phone and television or the civilian airliner you are riding in and the crew flying it?

If you are like me the answer is rarely, if at all. Why? Because the vast resources and systems behind these very ordinary taken-for-granted aspects of our lives are operated by the invisible professionals — the people you rarely, if ever, see, hear or think about. These people's dedication and professionalism make it possible for you not to think about your mail, your lights and water heater, your phone and television, the civilian airliner and its crew.

The people like you — all invisible professionals, people of dedication and professionalism, who are the key to today's armed forces. Throughout most of the history of the United States, service-members were rarely on the minds of most of our fellow citizens — coming to the front of their thoughts only during times of war. While much of that thought pattern has changed since Sept. 11, 2001, eventually we will again be only in the back of people's thoughts — again the invisible professionals.

Even among those at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base, all serving the Air Force in some capacity, there are invisible professionals:

- ◆ The Desert Inn dining facility cooks preparing breakfast to be served
- ◆ The night shift aircraft maintainers, servicing the aircraft on the day's flying schedule
- ◆ The firefighters responding to a 911 call from base housing
- ◆ The ultrasound specialist, checking out the equipment and ready to greet the first patient
- ◆ The instructor pilot and student mission planning for their training sortie
- ◆ The secretary performing one last format and spell check on a decoration
- ◆ The security forces members at parade rest in front of the flag pole to raise the colors
- ◆ The work group manager troubleshooting a computer problem
- ◆ The weather technician monitoring an approaching storm for potential lightning

- ◆ The military working dogs going through a newly purchased used car to check for drugs
 - ◆ The intelligence specialist reviewing multiple sources to build an informed briefing
 - ◆ The resource advisor reviewing and improving the budget execution report to request Major Command funding
 - ◆ The unit deployment managers performing one last check of his people's readiness before they process
 - ◆ The communication technicians removing equipment from the path of an approaching wildfire
 - ◆ The first sergeant getting out of bed at 2 a.m. to talk with a depressed airman
 - ◆ The catering manager setting up a party to honor a visiting general officer
 - ◆ The personnel specialist cross-checking officer performance report or enlisted performance report close-out dates to ensure none are late
 - ◆ The fuels lab technician ensuring the aviation petroleum oil lubricants and liquid oxygen on the aircraft are pure
 - ◆ The land mobile radio technician maintaining both the trunked and non-trunked radio systems
- All are invisible professionals — and one of them is you. Day-to-day you will receive little notice for the work you do and the details of your duties will be little understood. The diligence and care you use in performing your duties will be noticed only by their absence. Think about it — you don't notice your lights until they don't come on, you don't notice your water heater until your shower is cold. The aircrew doesn't notice the basic daily maintenance that keeps an aircraft mission ready until the aircraft isn't ready to launch. The airmen going through the breakfast line don't notice the work that goes into preparing food until it isn't ready to be served as scheduled. The maintenance pro super doesn't notice their radio until it quits working. People don't notice the security forces or fire fighters until they dial 911 and the minutes before their arrival seem like hours.

Service..., Integrity..., Excellence... — the core values of the Air Force are also the key tenets of the invisible professional. Throughout the years you will receive little recognition for the day-to-day work you do. Like the perfect servant you will be invisible to those who must perform their duties based on how well you have performed yours: people don't live without food, pilots can't fly without aircraft, aircraft can't fly without fuel, people can't work if they are worried about their families' security and safety.

...before Self, ...above All Else, ...in All We Do — your recognition must come from you and your knowledge that your dedication and professionalism made the difference.

Mentorship Memos

The family support center volunteer resource program offers a variety of contacts for people interested in volunteering in the Tucson community. For example, the American Red Cross needs volunteers in a variety of areas. Those interested should attend a volunteer orientation the first and third Tuesday of each month from 5 to 6 p.m. For more information, call Kalyn Simpson at 318-6740. For more information on other programs currently in need of volunteers, call 228-5690.

D-M NCO receives position at AFIT

The 2003 Air Force Institute of Technology Enlisted Student Selections Board recently selected a member of the 755th Operations Support Squadron to attend AFIT in October.

Master Sgt. Clyde Kebodeaux, weapons and tactics superintendent, will travel to AFIT in the fall to begin schooling for a Masters of Science in Computer Science. The program requires approximately 72 credit hours and takes 18 months to complete.

"I am elated to have the chance to excel and move on to new duties and greater responsibilities," said Kebodeaux. "AFIT emphasizes practical application of classroom knowledge in day-to-day Air Force duties. I am excited by the opportunity to further my education and become a better NCO at the same time."

According to Kebodeaux, the AFIT selection process is based on criteria including transcripts, undergraduate degree, graduate record examinations scores, Air Command and Staff Seminar, skill level and professional military education completed.

He went on to say that solid transcripts are crucial in the selection process.

"AFIT is an extremely prestigious and selective program," said Phil King, base training and education services flight chief. "This is an incredible opportunity for Clyde and will increase his marketability 100 fold."

The intense AFIT program provides professional advancement opportunities to graduates.

"I am very interested in seeing what assignment I receive after graduation," Kebodeaux said. "I want to thank the many commanders, supervisors and professors who wrote all of the great letters of recommendation. In the end, these letters, along with my focus on studying for the GRE, were what made my package stand out." (Courtesy 55th Wing Public Affairs.)

(Editor's note: "Integrity, Service, Excellence" is a forum for all D-M units to submit the names of their people who have earned recognition through monthly and quarterly awards, graduation from formal training and outstanding Career Development Scores. Submissions must include name, rank, unit and type of award earned. Individual and unit awards from command level and higher may be covered as a news story space permitting. By Airman 1st Class Matt Mason
755th Operational Support Squadron

Thanks to the overwhelming support from the Davis-Monthan Air Force Base community, a young Air Force couple is picking up of the pieces after a tragic fire early this month. The recently married couple and their dog escaped the three-alarm fire safely, only to see the blaze destroy their Tanque Verde apartment and everything in it June 3.

Immediately following the early morning fire, the Red Cross and management at the complex made arrangements for the couple and the other victims, but without renter's insurance, there wasn't much else that could be done.

That is where the support and charity of the Air Force family here at D-M stepped in. The airman's first sergeant, Senior Master Sgt. Russ Markestad at the 755th Operational Support Squadron, instantly sprang into action sending out an e-mail to all the shirts on base informing them of the tragedy and requesting any and all assistance for the couple. Almost instantaneously, donations came in from all directions to Markestad in the form of furniture, appliances, linens, clothes and money.

"The response has been amazing," said Markestad. "In fact, I've received so much for the couple that we're taking some of the donations to the Airman's Attic."

Of course, the couple is greatly appreciative of the outpouring of support they have received, but picking up and moving on has been difficult. One thing learned from all this is the importance of renter's insurance.

"We're looking into getting insurance right now," said the airman. "I've rented all through college and never really thought about it before."

Courtesy photos

The couple, married less than a year, moved to Tucson in February after he completed technical school at Keesler Air Force Base, Miss. "We're grateful for the amount of support we've received from everyone at D-M," the airman added.

Photos taken by Tucson firefighters show various angles of destruction after a fire destroyed a Davis-Monthan airman's Tanque Verde apartment June 3. Since they did not have renter's insurance, members of the D-M community rallied together to collect various supplies and money to help the airman and his wife get back on their feet.

What’s happening at the D-M clubs

Club closure

Both clubs will be closed on July 4, 5, and 6th. Cabanas will be closed on the 4th and reopens for normal business on Saturday and Sunday.

Club fun Fridays

Club members and their guests have lots of great reasons to visit their clubs on Fridays this summer. Fridays the clubs will hold their new “Summer Friday Buck Night” where members can enjoy burgers, hot dogs, 16-ounce domestic draft beers or 16-ounce sodas for just $1 each. Non-members pay only $2. Also every Friday, members who buy anything at the club can register to win $50 in Club Cash Coupons. Members simply print their name and phone number on their sales receipt, then leave receipt in the Club Cash drawing box near the cashier. Drawings are held Fridays at 6:45 p.m. Members don’t have to be present to win but those not present when their name is drawn receive half the normal drawing amount. Club cash coupons can be spent just like money anywhere at the clubs, but may not be used with services bucks, gift certificates or other coupon or discount offers. For more information call the Mirage Officers Club at 228-3301 or the Desert Oasis Enlisted Club at 228-3100.

SINCE 1979, MEETING THE NEEDS OF CHILDREN IN AMERICA AND AROUND THE WORLD

...with love.

It takes more than food to give a child self respect and hope. It takes the compassionate hands of love providing both food for the body and food for the inner spirit. For over 2 decades we have been committed to one mission... feeding children with help and hope.

It's the kind of feeding we do best!

Last year we distributed more than 97 million pounds of food and other essential commodities. Supplemented 869,446 meals every day.

Thank you for being a friend of the children and Feed The Children. You're investing in the future of our society...our children.
